

Satellite radio is a superior technology and offers important competition in the overly consolidated media market. As I sit in my car choosing between CD, AM, FM and XM for entertainment and information it is clear that given each are just a button away they all ought to compete on the same playing field with the same rules.